Letters to the Editor

Sir, May I comment on the passage from your Editorial?

> ... if the reports are correct he (Pope John Paul II) will continue to insist on the basic incompatibility of Marxism and Christianity?

I am sure you are right in your belief that there need not be a deadlock. But I am also sure that the Pope will be right if he insists that there is a basic incompatibility between Christianity and Marxism as it is practised in the USSR and its satellite countries; i.e. Communism in its totalitarian and anti-religious aspects.

Those Christians who co-operate with Communists must constantly bear this in mind. They have the double task of changing the social order and changing 'the unacceptable face' of Communism. The latter can obviously be done more readily where the Marxists have not yet come to power and need the help of the Christians in winning that power. After they have gained
